Continuing Education for the Pet Grooming Community

We are excited about involving our groomers in our educational series. As groomers, you often have an up-close relationship with pets and can alert owners to problems that may otherwise go unnoticed. While performing your grooming regimen you have the opportunity to observe changes in the skin, eyes and ears. For that reason we will bring you lectures from our Oncology, Ophthalmology and Dermatology departments. Oncology will lead off the series with “Lumps and Bumps. Guidelines for Detecting Cancer in Dogs”, given by Dr. Kate Vickery, VMD, DACVIM.

The lecture will be held in the evenings, one at each location.
